Copyright information for teachers

This research guide is designed for individual use by students studying The Australian Curriculum: History.

Please note, due to licensing arrangements, State Library of Queensland's subscription databases and eBooks are for private research and study purposes only. They may not be used as teaching resources in classroom environments in schools or other educational institutions and students must not be required to access specific databases or eBooks as part of the curriculum.

Teachers can advise students on State Library's resources and encourage their use to help with their studies and research. Students are encouraged to access State Library's resources at school, but not during class time.

Teachers are most welcome to advise students what is available via State Library, and to encourage students to make use of eBooks and databases to help with their studies. It is permissible for a teacher to demonstrate the use of State Library's catalogue, and to point out how various online material can be accessed.

It is also permissible for students to access State Library's online resources at school – but this must not be during class time. An example of permitted use might be where students have a spare period when they work on assignments or homework, and they are accessing databases as private members of State Library. Information about joining State Library is here.

Please also note that State Library has digitised a range of material such as diaries, and out of copyright publications held in our collections. There are no restrictions on the use of this material as part of a teaching program – and no requirement to be a member of the library to use this material. This type of material can easily be found, searching State Library's One Search catalogue using the "SLQ digitised collections" option in the dropdown menu.

For more information about the use of copyright materials visit Understanding copyright or contact State Library at copyright@slq.qld.gov.au

Overview

State Library is a great place to learn about Angkor and the Khmer Empire and find information to complete your research-based assessments.

State Library's One Search catalogue is the gateway to an extensive suite of national and international journals, databases, eBooks, encyclopedias, newspaper archives, and collections of thousands of historical images, letters, artworks, diaries and artefacts to interrogate as sources.

This guide is designed to help you discover items on Angkor and the Khmer Empire that you can access on site, from your school or home.

Before you get started

Become a member of State Library of Queensland (it's free!).

Featured Databases

The Virtual Library of National Geographic has magazine articles, books, images and videos on Angkor and the Khmer Empire.

The Britannica Library has articles, images, and videos, created especially for teenagers, on Angkor and the Khmer Empire.

The screenshot shows the Britannica Library Teens interface. At the top, there is a search bar and a menu icon. Below that is a large image of Angkor Wat. The title 'Khmer empire' is prominently displayed. A 'Reading Level' indicator shows '2'. Navigation options include 'Article', 'Images & Videos', and 'Related'. The 'Introduction' section is visible, featuring a map of Southeast Asia and a text block: 'The Khmer empire was a state of Southeast Asia that lasted from about AD 802 to 1431. It enjoyed its greatest prosperity from the 11th to the 13th'.
