Copyright information for teachers

This research guide is designed for individual use by students.

Please note, due to licensing arrangements, State Library's subscription databases and eBooks are for private research and study purposes only. They may not be used as teaching resources in classroom environments in schools or other educational institutions and students must not be required to access specific databases or eBooks as part of the curriculum.

Teachers can advise students on State Library's resources and encourage their use to help with their studies and research. Students are encouraged to access State Library's resources at school, but not during class time.

Teachers are most welcome to advise students what is available via State Library, and to encourage students to make use of eBooks and databases to help with their studies. It is permissible for a teacher to demonstrate the use of State Library's catalogue, and to point out how various online material can be accessed.

It is also permissible for students to access State Library's online resources at school – but this must not be during class time. An example of permitted use might be where students have a spare period when they work on assignments or homework, and they are accessing databases as private members of State Library. Information about joining State Library is here.

Please also note that State Library has digitised a range of material such as diaries, and out of copyright publications held in our collections. There are no restrictions on the use of this material as part of a teaching program – and no requirement to be a member of the library to use this material. They are easily findable searching our catalogue using the "SLQ digitised collections" option in the dropdown menu.

For easy reference

Oxford Reference spans 25 different subject areas, bringing together 2 million digitised entries across Oxford University Press's dictionaries, companions, and encyclopedias.

The screenshot shows the Oxford Reference website interface. At the top, there is a search bar and navigation tabs for 'Subject' and 'Reference Type'. Below the navigation, there is a 'Back to Results' link and a set of utility icons. The main content area features a book cover for 'The Oxford Companion to Australian History' on the left. To the right of the cover, the title is displayed in a large font, followed by the editors' names: Graeme Davison, John Hirst, and Stuart Macintyre. A detailed description of the book's content follows, mentioning its focus on Australian society, politics, and culture. On the far right, there is a sidebar with biographical information about the editors, including Graeme Davison's role as Professor of History at Monash University and his authorship of several books.

The Britannica Library has articles, images and more, with a selection of resources especially for teenagers.

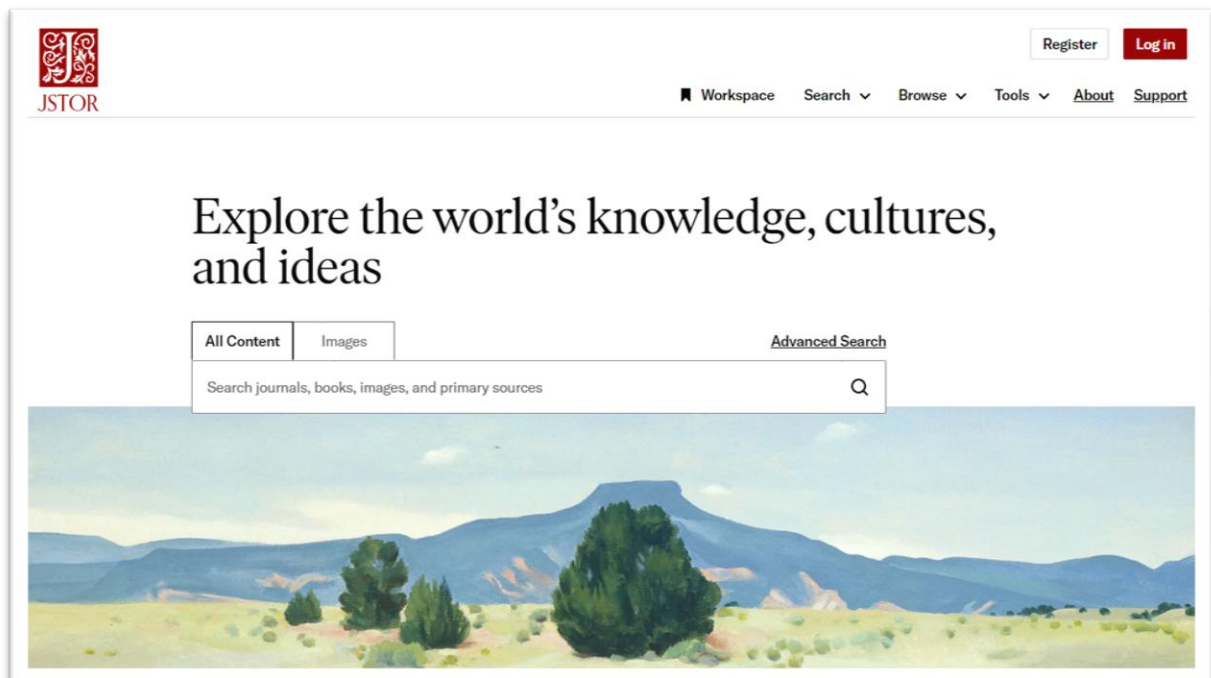

The screenshot displays the Britannica Library Teens website. The header includes the '250 Britannica Library Teens' logo, a search bar, and a menu icon. The main content area features a large graphic of the Australian Aboriginal flag (a yellow sun on a black background with a red band) behind the article title 'Australian Aboriginal peoples'. Below the title, there is a 'TABLE OF CONTENTS' section with a list of topics: 'Introduction', 'Origins and Beliefs', 'Traditional Culture', and 'European Contact and Cultural Change'. To the right of the title, there are several utility icons for sharing, saving, and printing. Below the title, there are tabs for 'Article', 'Images & Videos', and 'Related' content.
