New staff mobilisation opportunities

Queensland Health are seeking 60-70 people to provide administrative support as part of the Public Service Commission's employee mobilisation program. We have also been told there are more opportunities coming our way. Check the FAQs on the program to learn more.

Queensland Premier Annastacia Palaszczuk emphasised the importance of bolstering Queensland Health's contact tracing effort and other critical work in the public service in a speech last Tuesday. Watch from 0:35 – 3:23 to hear her address. The Premier confirmed the government's approach to mobilisation: "We need to be throwing everything at this."

Thanks again to the State Library staff who have contributed to this important and essential work.

Register when self-isolating

If you are self-isolating, you are encouraged to register on the Australian Government's Coronavirus app. This will help authorities gain a better understanding of the experiences of people self-isolating and will be used to develop better information and response from the government.

And just a reminder, please ensure you keep PPL (Influenza Coordinator) up-to-date with any COVID-19 related illnesses that are impacting you or your family.
