COVID-safe behaviours are critical

With the situation evolving in New South Wales and increased movement around the country in the lead up to Christmas, it is essential that we remain vigilant with the basic COVID-safe behaviours.

Remember:

- Maintain appropriate physical distancing and good hand hygiene.
- Sneeze and cough into your elbow or a tissue (then throw the tissue away).
- When you're out and about, carry hand sanitiser, antibacterial wipes and a mask to wear in situations where you can't socially distance.
- Make sure you check in to venues with your correct details for contact tracing.

Checking in

Anybody who enters State Library must check in upon their arrival, whether they're a visitor for an internal meeting or a member of the public. This is very important to ensure we can provide accurate information quickly to Queensland Health, if requested, for contact tracing.

Staff working at front of house service points need to ensure we are always following our COVID-safe processes and all visitors comply with those requirements.

From later this week, paper-based record keeping will no longer be accepted in Queensland. We are working to set up a QR code to facilitate digital check-ins for visitors at the Anzac Square Memorial Galleries.

It is likely that Queensland Health will conduct compliance checks in the coming weeks. Our coordinated efforts will ensure that we can comply within required timeframes.

Get tested

If you have any symptoms at all, no matter how mild, get tested immediately and isolate until you receive your results.

In addition to new border restrictions, Queensland Health is also urging anybody already in Queensland who has been in Greater Sydney since 11 December to get tested and home quarantine until they receive their results.

Thank you for helping to keep everyone safe and healthy.
