Thank you!

Thank you to all staff for pulling together to respond to the latest COVID restrictions and changing circumstances. Your hard work is greatly appreciated!

Signing in

Sine Pro is now back in action at State Library, The Edge and Anzac Square Memorial Galleries.

Please remember to sign in each time you re-enter the building after being outside the Cultural Centre. If you are moving between The Edge building and the main State Library building during your day, you will need to sign in at each location.

This is in addition to the ongoing requirement to use the Check In Qld app.

Thank you for helping us to help keep you safe.

Work arrangements for the next fortnight

For Brisbane-based staff, please have a conversation with your People Leader ahead of time about your work plans for this week and next. It is important that you have agreed, in advance, with your People Leader where you will be working each day. If you are continuing to work remotely, you will need to confirm your work priorities together with your People Leader.

Remember that masks are now mandatory front and back of house. To seek an exemption for wearing a mask on this web page, you first need to register to create a profile on the Queensland Health website.

For Cairns staff in lockdown until Wednesday — we're thinking of you!

Recent commentary from the Chief Health Officer indicates that future lockdowns are likely to manage outbreaks of the Delta variant. We need to keep this in mind as we go about our work each week, and consider what preparations and practices we can build into our routines so we are always ready.

New vaccination centre

The Chief Health Officer is actively encouraging everyone to be vaccinated. Today, the Premier announced that the Brisbane Convention and Exhibition Centre (South Bank) will be a vaccination centre. Pre-bookings will be required. I will provide more details on this site as they are released.

Take care,
Vicki
