PALM ISLAND INQUEST At Palm Island Aboriginal Settlement on Wednesday the Coroner, Mr. J. D. McLennan, R.M., held an inquest into the circumstances surrounding the death of Jack Mean, an aborigine, who died suddenly on June 28, 1945. Jerry Watson, aged 52, stated he lived with his wife and two children at the settlement. His wife was ill and he had married her by tribal marriage. On Saturday, June 23, about 6 o'clock, he was inside his house, which was on top of a tree overlooking a creek. Jerry Gilman and Harold Blanche were in the house. He heard a noise under the house, and he went a light outside on to the verandah. He then put the light under the house and saw someone sitting there. He said: "Who are you?" but got no reply. He then went to the left-hand side of the house, and saw someone reaching down to the creek. He went out to others, who came down to the creek. They heard a noise working in the water, and they heard someone call out in native language. "Someone got hold of the man's wrist and to take the man and was the mother. Jack Mean said, "I feel funny." They then went for Mr. Roberts and Dr. Power. Jack Mean was his uncle. He had been ill at Mossman. He was sick in the house. John Edward Osborn, of the C.I.B., stated he had made arrangements into the death of Jack Mean, and was included there, very, no surprise at all.	Townsville Daily Bulletin, 3 August 1945, p 2
