

STATE LIBRARY¹
QUEENSLAND

Spanish conquest of the Americas

(c.1492–c.1572)

Student research guide

History | Year 8

Cover: Tzompantli, 2013, by Rafael Saldaña

© 2024. This work is licensed under the Attribution-NonCommercial-ShareAlike 4.0 International Creative Commons (CC BY-NC-SA 4.0 license) by State Library of Queensland. You are free to share and adapt the work under the following terms: you must give appropriate credit, it is for a non-commercial purpose and, if you remix, transform, or build upon the materials, you must distribute your contributions under the same license as the original.

For other uses please contact State Library at copyright@slq.qld.gov.au

Date created: 12 August 2024

Date prepared: 07 April 2026

Copyright information for teachers

This research guide is designed for individual use by students studying The Australian Curriculum: History.

Please note, due to licensing arrangements, State Library’s subscription databases and eBooks are for private research and study purposes only. They may not be used as teaching resources in classroom environments in schools or other educational institutions and students must not be required to access specific databases or eBooks as part of the curriculum.

Teachers can advise students on State Library’s resources and encourage their use to help with their studies and research. Students are encouraged to access State Library’s resources at school, but not during class time.

Teachers are most welcome to advise students what is available via State Library, and to encourage students to make use of eBooks and databases to help with their studies. It is permissible for a teacher to demonstrate the use of State Library’s catalogue, and to point out how various online material can be accessed.

It is also permissible for students to access State Library’s online resources at school – but this must not be during class time. An example of permitted use might be where students have a spare period when they work on assignments or homework, and they are accessing databases as private members of State Library. Information about joining State Library is here.

Please also note that State Library has digitised a range of material such as diaries, and out of copyright publications held in our collections. There are no restrictions on the use of this material as part of a teaching program – and no requirement to be a member of the library to use this material. This type of material can easily be found, searching State Library’s One Search catalogue using the “SLQ digitised collections” option in the dropdown menu.

For more information about the use of copyright materials visit Understanding copyright or contact State Library at copyright@slq.qld.gov.au

Overview

State Library is a great place to learn about the Spanish conquest of the Americas and to find information to complete your research-based assessments.

State Library's One Search catalogue is the gateway to an extensive suite of national and international journals, databases, eBooks, encyclopedias, newspaper archives, and collections of thousands of historical images, letters, artworks, diaries, and artefacts to interrogate as sources.

This guide is designed to help you discover items on the Spanish conquest of the Americas that you can access on site, from your school or home.

Before you get started

Become a member of State Library of Queensland (it's free!).

Once you have joined State Library, log in to your account in One Search so you can use the links in this research guide to access the featured collection items.

Featured Databases

The National Geographic Virtual Library has articles, images, books and more on the Spanish conquest of the Americas.

The screenshot shows the National Geographic Virtual Library interface. At the top, there is a search bar with the text "Search..." and a magnifying glass icon. Below the search bar, there are navigation icons for "Results", "Next", and "Advanced Search". To the right of the search bar, there are icons for "Cite", "Print", and "Get Link".

The main content area displays the title "Visitor's Guide to the Aztec World" in a large, bold font. Below the title, there is a large image of an Aztec figure in traditional attire, holding a staff. To the right of the image, there is a text block that begins with "THEY CAME FROM AZTLAN, a place of myth and dreams situated, perhaps, somewhere in the west of Mexico. They came, the fierce Aztecs, wandering out of the wilderness with their trust god Huitzilopochtli, leader on human hearts, who gave them the name Mexica. Uncivilized they were, judged by the standards of other Nahuatl-speaking people - earlier arrivals in the Valley of Mexico who lived in city-states ruled by kings. The Aztecs settled on Chapultepec - the 'hill of the grasshopper' - in the 13th century. At first they were left alone by the people around them, but soon those neighbors grew to despise their heathen ways and forced them out. The Aztecs moved to a barren expanse of land, near where the University of Mexico stands today, where they subsisted on a diet of snakes and serpens. There they remained for a generation as solitary nomads, first to the Culhuacan and later to the Tepanecas of Azcapotzalco. Seeking another home, they landed on a marshy island in Lake Texcoco at a place where they spotted an eagle perched on a cactus. The sighting fulfilled an ancient prophecy, and the Aztecs adopted the eagle as the emblem of their new home - Tenochtitlan. In memory of Azcapotzalco they launched into unremitting warfare against the other city-states, sharing with their overlords the booty from their conquests. In 1428 the Aztecs established their supremacy in the valley by crushing the Tepanecas. A three-city alliance with Texcoco and Tlacopan (today's Tacuba) brought Tenochtitlan more power and riches. As the Aztec Empire expanded, so did its artistic accomplishments, including massive stone sculpture and fine feather- and goldwork. By the 16th century they had brought most of present-day Mexico into a rich, tribute-paying empire that was at the peak of its flowering when Hernan Cortes, hungry for gold and glory, landed in Mexico in 1519. The end of empire came even faster than its rise. By August 13, 1521, the last Aztec ruler had surrendered.

Other text on the page includes "MEXICO CITY FROM INAUSPICIOUS beginnings in the 16th century as an island settlement in Lake Texcoco, the city of Tenochtitlan became the seat of the Aztec Empire. Its high-pitched temples, its canals and canals, its palaces and markets, and the ingenuity and inventiveness of its people so impressed Cortes that he compared Tenochtitlan favorably with the great cities of Spain. With just 400 Spanish troops, but more than 100,000 Indian allies - some of whom thought the Aztecs were the enemy - Cortes overcame the city. With the storming of Tenochtitlan, the Spanish had the foundation of the capital of modern Mexico, a growing, bustling metropolis that is expected to become, by this century's end, the world's most populous city."

At the bottom of the page, there are two maps. The left map is titled "VALLEY OF MEXICO SEVEN THOUSAND FEET ABOVE SEA" and shows the geographical layout of the valley. The right map is titled "MEXICO CITY" and shows the city's location in relation to Lake Texcoco and the surrounding area.

The Britannica Library has articles, images, videos, primary sources, eBooks and more on the Spanish conquest of the Americas with a selection of resources especially for teenagers.

JSTOR is an excellent resource for finding primary sources on the Spanish conquest of the Americas.

More

Search the catalogue

Continue searching for more on the Spanish conquest of the Americas using these subject searches:

Aztecs -- Civilization

Incas -- History

Aztecs -- History

Peru -- History -- Conquest, 1522-1548

Aztecs -- Antiquities

Borrow items

Order items online through State Library's One Search catalogue and borrow items from State Library's collections when you visit us onsite.

Ask a librarian

Ask one of State Library's expert librarians for help with your research inquiry.

Visit State Library with your class

Ask your teacher to bring your classroom to State Library and explore exhibitions, research for your assessments or undertake independent study.